READING

Airplane Two men made the first airplane that worked. They were brothers. Their names were Orville and Wilbur Wright. The airplane was made of wood and was called a "flyer." Before the brothers invented the first airplane, Orville and Wilbur opened a bike shop. They fixed bikes when things went wrong. They also made their own bikes. They saved the money they made.

The men used the money to build things that could fly. The first two things did not work. The third "flyer" did. It stayed in the air for 12 seconds. It went 120 feet. It was the start of a great invention! Orville and Wilbur made other planes. The planes got better and faster. Now their first plane is in a museum for the world to see.
