The Humanities Department of Delhi Public School, Gandhinagar successfully conducted an Intra-Class Model-Making Competition for Class XII students on 04 April 2026 during the CCA period. The activity was organised with the objective of making learning interactive and enhancing students' understanding of the Harappan Civilization.

Students participated enthusiastically in groups and showcased their creativity by preparing models on various aspects such as urban planning, trade networks, dockyards, script, and craft production centres. The models reflected the remarkable planning skills and well-organised systems of the Harappans. Each group presented their model with a brief explanation, highlighting how their work represented trade, planning, and administrative features of the civilization. The presentations demonstrated not only subject knowledge but also confidence and teamwork among the students.

The models were judged on the basis of creativity, presentation, and accuracy of historical content. The activity provided a valuable platform for experiential learning and encouraged students to explore history beyond textbooks.

Overall, the competition was a great success and proved to be an enriching and engaging experience for all participants.
